((Why Migni))

small light can change the whole room

You don't need to redo a room to make it feel different. Sometimes one expressive object and a softer glow are enough. That's the idea behind MIGNI: portable lights with colour, texture and a character of their own.

take a closer look

form
Each silhouette is designed to feel expressive without taking over the room. It brings character to a shelf or table.

glow
The translucent shade spreads a warm, gentle glow instead of a harsh beam. It softens the space into evening.

material
Glazed ceramic meets a softly translucent diffuser. Small shifts in colour, shine and texture give the lamp depth.

cordless
A rechargeable battery keeps cables out of sight while the light is in use. Move it from bedside to table, shelf or anywhere.

migni at home

I bought it for the corner beside our sofa, which always felt a little unfinished but didn't need more furniture. The glow is warm enough for late evenings, and the ceramic base has so much character that it still feels like part of the room during the day. Now it's the first light I switch on when I get home.

I noticed the colour first, but it's the glow that made it feel right at home. It's soft enough when we're watching something on the sofa, but still comfortable for reading. Friends always ask where it's from, and I love that it feels unusual without making the whole room feel overdone.
